DAY TO ELECT SCHOOL MA'AMS

June 24th set Apart as A General Educational Rally.

SPEECHES IN THE AFTERNOON

Miss West has Invited all The County Teachers and Trustees to Attend.

An educational rally for the schools of Christian county will be held here June 24, and Miss Jennie West, Superintendent, has issued a call for the teachers and trustees of all the schools to attend, also every one else who feels an interest in such matters.

On that day the teachers for the schools throughout the county will be selected by the trustees. Miss West will distribute the supply of crayons and erasers for the various schools, placing them in the keeping of the trustees.

Contracts will also be let for several new school buildings, plans and specifications for which can be seen at Miss West's office. All bids must be in before the 24th.

At two o'clock p. m., Hon. T. J. Coates and County Attorney J. C. Duffy will deliver addresses.

Mr. Coates is State supervisor of rural schools and will address himself to that branch of school work. Mr. Duffy is a former teacher and is still a close student of school methods.

Fake Soap.

During the first of the spring a man, who said his home was in Madisonville, sold a large quantity of laundry soap called "Naptha Monia." The sample shown to prospective purchasers was almost as large as a piece of "Pretty" soap and had the appearance of being a fine laundry soap. The man who sold the soap said that he was selling it at five cents per cake, but that when the grocers got hold of it the price would be ten cents.

He "delivered the goods" not long afterwards and it was "fresh from the factory" and "should be laid away to harden." This was done and it shrank to less than half the size and as a soap for any purpose is worthless. The wrapper that covered each cake does not bear the name of the manufacturer or where it was made. The grand jury will look into the matter before it finally adjourns.

Can't Be Attached.

Deposits made in the United States postal savings banks cannot be attached in any state in the Union, according to Postoffice Inspector Geo. Pate.

Absolute secrecy must be maintained as to the identity of depositors and courts are helpless in any attempt to force postmasters to produce their records. Money thus deposited is not subject to attachment or other legal proceedings at the instance of the creditors.

PRESS BOY'S AT CERULEAN

Will Make Merry For a Whole Week, Beginning Monday June 19.

THURSDAY HOPKINSVILLE DAY

Excursion From the City Will Pay a Visit to The Scribes.

The Kentucky Press Association, 150 members strong, will meet at Cerulean Springs Monday and spend a whole week at that delightful place, where they will hold an annual reunion, drink water, eat fried chicken and take a week of rest and recreation.

Plans are being made to have one day set apart as Hopkinsville Day and a big crowd from this city will go down to Cerulean and spend the day with the editors. Many ladies will accompany the business men and others who will pay their respects and let the visitors know that Hopkinsville is the Metropolis of Western Kentucky.

The Third Regiment Orchestra will accompany the special train upon which they will go, and a special rate will be given.

The Association visited Hopkinsville in a body by invitation in 1908, when it met at Cerulean before, and this time the visit will be returned to let the editors know they are still pleasantly remembered.

YOUNG FARMER

Suffers Fracture of Collar Bone And Other injuries.

Mr. P. H. Major, Jr., of the Beverly neighborhood, sustained a fracture of the collar bone and other painful injuries in a runaway accident Wednesday. He was taking a mower from one farm to another when the team became frightened and ran off. The tongue of the mower was broken, and sticking in the ground, caused Mr. Major to be thrown out. He was rendered unconscious and was found in that condition two hours afterwards by a colored boy who was driving up the cows.

Surgical aid was given the injured man and he will recover, though he will probably be laid up for some time.

Is He?

Is the man who puts up your prescriptions as competent in his line as a doctor is in his? He should be. Go to Countzler's and you can depend on it.

There is no more sacred duty that can devolve upon man, than the custody of money not his own. When, by reason of ill health or old age, men find it impossible to properly manage their valuable interests, and thereby to protect those whom they must leave behind them, it becomes necessary for them to seek another, who, representing them, can safely be entrusted with their property, and who will conscientiously inspect their wishes and anxieties.

MORRIS SUIT AGAINST STOWE

Has Occupied Most of the Court's Time This Week.

VERDICT RETURNED, $2,000

Other Civil Matters Disposed of Since Last Report.

The damage suit of Houston Morris, by his father, J. M. Morris, against R. T. Stowe for $5,000, has been on trial this week.

The boy collided with an automobile near the asylum gate and was severely injured, his leg being broken.

The machine was being run by Robt. Stowe, son of the defendant. Mr. Stowe had liability insurance. In the trial Southall & Son represent the defendant and J. T. Edmunds and H. J. Stites the bonding company, while C. H. Bush, Fowler & White appear for the plaintiff.

The case was argued yesterday by J. T. Edmunds and W. H. Southall, on one side, and W. T. Fowler and C. H. Bush on the other and went to the jury.

At 4:30 p. m. a verdict was returned of $2,000 for the plaintiff.

Circuit Court.

Last Wednesday afternoon, the grand jury brought in an indictment of malicious shooting against Arthur Cooper one of the state's witnesses in the recent night rider trial. There was an indictment of disorderly conduct against Cooper for shooting into the house of John Ostrer, near Pee Dee, on the night of June 3. This was dismissed, and the new one brought.

Cooper was brought before Judge Hanbery, but could not give bail, and was committed to jail. Late in the night he succeeded in getting sufficient bail, and was released.

In the case of W. E. Guthrie vs. Cumberland Telephone Co. for injuries sustained while working for the company, the jury gave the plaintiff $400.

After hearing several motions concerning the Acme Mills & Elevator Co. Judge Hanbery finally denied the motion for a receiver and the mill will be sold by Master Commissioner Jno. B. Chilton the first Monday in July. The property is very valuable and mill men from far and near are expected to attend the sale and be bidders for the plant.

In the case of Lottie Jenkins vs. S. H. Kress & Co., the jury decided for defendant. The plaintiff sued for $2,000 damages on the ground that she was accused of stealing two ten cent rings.

Another batch of indictments were returned Thursday among them the following more important ones:

Chas. Ricketts, malicious shooting, in jail. Chas. Thacker, malicious shooting, house breaking and robbery, in jail. Joe Johnson, attempt to rape child under 12

Crap Shootin'.

Since Prof. Frederick Starr has discovered that dice-throwing was popular 1,200 years before Christ, crap-shootin' has climbed out of the humble hands of the negro deckhand to the gaming tables of the ultra-fashionable.

In this day of speed craps are having their inning. They exceed the speed limit at every turn. Draw poker and stud poker and bridge are ice wagons when they move alongside the game which depends on the turn of the dice.

The noble Greeks and the classic
Romans who played the game probably gave it a much less picturesque verbal accompaniment than it has today. It would be interesting to know what Aristotle said when calling for "Big Liz," which is the way the newsboy and the boot-black call for a combination on the two dice which will total nine. "Big Dick," which is an appeal for a ten combination, must have been something like the names of Greek restaurant keepers when Aristides' contemporaries called for it.

"Little Joe" and Phoebe Five," the affectionate terms for four and five, probably sounded like the past singular, first person singular, of a very irregular Greek verb.

The Greeks may have invented crap-shootin', and the Romans may have dissipated their car fare by throwing the ivory cubes, but the negro has made the game so thoroughly his own that it seems a part of him.—Tennessean.

Operators Held to Account.

In France the operators of aeroplanes are held responsible for damage done to persons or property when coming to the earth. In two cases such operators have been found guilty of homicide and punished, although the punishment was not as great as that for other forms of the same crime.

BUILT OF HANDSOME GRANITE

Aberdeen, Chief City of the Highlands, is Really Beautiful and Excellently Paved.

"Aberdeen," says Mr. Wilson, "is the chief city of the highlands and the third in size and commercial importance in Scotland. It has 170,000 inhabitants and is really a place of marked beauty. Every home in it and every public building or commercial structure is of the native rock, the town being situated in the midst of granite quarries and being the center of the stone industry in Great Britain. The colors are gray and a beautiful pink, and the Aberdeen granite is shipped to all parts of the world. It is also the world's greatest fish market, the daily catch brought there by the fishermen who scour the seas with their trawl nets for hundreds of miles in every direction, amounting to thousands of tons.

"Having plenty of material right at hand Aberdeen is one of the best-paved cities in Europe, and Union street is one of the most noted urban highways in the United Kingdom, imposing in width, and its paving exciting the admiration of every visitor. All the Scotch roads are good and that is one reason our country is highly prized by automobilists."

LITTLE THINGS.

"I never," he said, "permit myself to be disturbed over trifles. There are so many big things to engage one's attention that I consider it foolish to let the little ones bother me.
Think how many people permit themselves to go all to pieces every time any little thing happens to fall in their way. They are the ones who make the world a dismal place. If every one would learn to pass over the little troubles—to ignore them—how much more good cheer there would be. It is a sign of a small nature to let a little thing distress one to—wow! Oh, Lord! Oh! Oh! Blank, blank, blank, blank!—
I've got a speck in my eye! Oh, Lord! It's killing me!"

Checking Motion of Ship.

In actual practice the rolling of ships in the sea has been reduced from 11 per cent to 2 per cent, by the invention of Herr Frahm of Hamburg.
His system makes use of water tanks extending through the hold transversely from one side of the boat to the other and the passage of the water from one side of the boat to the other effectually checks the motion of the boat.

BOTH WERE MICHIGAN "MEN"

Story of Prominent Educator and Latin Teacher Whom He Found in Lonely Town.

A prominent educator tells this story to illustrate the pride which all collegians take in their own alma mater. He studied at a state university where coeducation was strongly rooted. For a Latin teacher he had a man famous for the success of his peculiar language method.

After I had been out of college a few years I became inspector of high schools for the state university in another state. In a lonely, out-of-the-way town I found a woman who taught Latin so well that I thought she could have learned it nowhere but from my own old professor.

I did not ask her outright, but began talking, in a rambling way, about her method. I found excuse to pronounce some Latin word, and now and then I would bring in a phrase which I knew the professor was fond of using.

The woman's face took on a puzzled expression, as if she were dimly remembering something. Then she began to look at me suspiciously, and a half-smile slowly dawned in her eyes.

At last I launched into one of the professor's funny stories, which I knew he must have repeated year after year. The evidence was complete. She waited for no more. She reached for my hand, and her face showed how much she had missed the old college associations in that lonely spot and how dear in her memory they still were.

"Tell me," she exclaimed, "are you a Michigan man?"

"I am," I confessed.

"So am I."—Youth's Companion.

TO FILL A LONG-FELT WANT

Way Suggested in Which Anatomists Could Get First Class Brains
for Dissection.

We are sure that the deepest sympathy will be felt in all classes of society with the anatomists who are complaining that they are deficient in knowledge of the anatomy and structure of the human brain merely because of the difficulty of obtaining first-class brains for dissection.
This long-felt want should certainly be supplied, but that the plan of the editor of American Medicine to urge intelligent men to will their brains to science is a sure way out of the difficulty may well be doubted.

We are afraid the scientific investigators will have an oversupply of very ordinary brains on their hands if the suggestion of American Medicine is carried out. A better way would be for the men of science to select the brains they think they want, on the hoof, so to speak, apply for the use of them when the time comes, and be content to wait. It would undoubtedly be esteemed a high honor for a man to be singled out this way, stimulating to the object himself and immensely gratifying to his family. It would be a new and precious order of merit.—
New York Times.

FRIENDLY.

A regiment of soldiers were at camp and a young Scottish recruit was put on sentry outside the general's tent. In the morning the general rose, looked out of his tent and said to the young man in a stern and loud voice:

"Who are you?"

The young man turned round smartly and said:

"Fine! oo's yerself?"—Tit-Bits.

PATRIOTIC CAUTION.

"You have displayed very little interest in the Bacon-Shakespeare controversy."

"Don't mention it," replied the student. "As a patriotic citizen I feel it my duty to refrain from referring to any controversy for fear some member of congress will insist on an investigation."

MISAPPREHENSION.

She—Why was the engagement broken off?

He—Well, after taking the girl to dinners and theaters, giving her costly presents and a birthday gift of a motor car, her father accused me of amusing myself at her expense.

DOUBTING DIAGNOSIS.

"I think your son, judging from his stammering, connected talk, is suffering from a case of aphasia."

"Humph! More likely he is suffering from that case of beer."

Guests

The farmer and his wife were about to sit down to a towards the house.

The good wife was equal to the occasion—thanks to her New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

She had it lit in a moment, and her guests hardly were seated on the porch before a hearty hot meal was ready for the table—sausages and eggs and long rashers of streaky bacon, and rolls just crispied in the oven and fresh coffee—and the hostess herself as cool and neat as if she had not been near the kitchen.

She never could have managed it with an old-fashioned range.

FORGOT THE CORRECT WORD

Annie Luck's Husband Accused Her of Vagrancy Because She "Busted" His Door.

The hearing room of the Front and Master streets police station was crowded with the curious the other morning when a young negro woman was hailed before Magistrate Scott. "What is your name?" asked the magistrate.

"Annie Luck," replied the prisoner.

"Annie Luck?" repeated the judge; "and what kind of luck brings you here?"

"Bad luck," said Annie. "That's my husband. Don't know what he done it for."

The magistrate turned to the husband and asked him why he had had his wife arrested.

"Why, for vagrancy," replied the husband.

"Vagrancy?" said the judge. "How do you make that out? Does she not live with you?"

"Yes," said the husband, "but she done bust open my door last night."

"Why," said the judge, "that is not vagrancy; that is hydrophobia."

"That right, judge?" said Luck.

THE REASON

De Quiz—I shouldn't think you could afford to play poker if you are so unlucky at it.

De Witt—What I lose at poker my wife makes up at bridge.

BUT IT DID HIM GOOD.

Mrs. N. Beebe Hasbrouck knows a little boy whose father, after many unheeded admonitions, took the young man out into the garage—they no longer afford woodsheds in that aristocratic quarter of the town—and with an implement selected for its utility for the matter in hand impressed upon his son and heir the necessity of obedience.

It was Walter's first experience, and he was much more enraged than subdued by the fall his pride suffered in the premises. The ordeal over, he turned to his father with flashing eyes and sobbed: "All right for you, dad, but I want you distinctly to understand that you are not my mother!"

Nevertheless, a mighty change has come over him since that day.—Cleveland Leader.

EASY FOR TOKYO POLICE.

The Japanese police have an easier time than their confreres in Europe. Crime in the land of the chrysanthemum is almost limited to theft and tragedies, or serious cases of bodily harm resulting from street brawls. It is next to impossible, the chief of the Tokyo police says, for a murder to be committed without some one hearing of it at the moment. This is due to the fact that the houses are composed of paper and bamboo, so any noise in a house occasioned by robbers or assassins would not fail to attract the attention of neighbors.

WELL BROUGHT UP.

No child of parents in moderate circumstances has been brought up more simply than Miss Marguerite, the fifteen-year-old daughter of Andrew Carnegie. She has spent her time in study, with plenty of play. Her mother dresses her very simply, and in every way she has not been allowed to indulge in foolish display.

PROUD TO TELL ABOUT CURES

Folks Who Have Been Sick Like to See Their Cases in Print, Says Doctor.

"Any doctor who cures a patient of an illness serious enough to be written up in a medical magazine has a right to feel proud of himself, but he isn't nearly so proud as the person he cured," said a doctor. "It actually looks as if seeing the history of their cases in print compensates some folks for being sick."

"Nearly everybody nowadays who has a pretty hard pull to get back to health asks me if I am not going to write up the case for publication. The mere suggestion that it is not interesting enough for copy nearly causes a relapse. As an incentive to recovery I have tried my literary skill on several cases that contained not one sensational feature from a scientific standpoint."

"The patients were pretty sick, of course, and thought they were going to die. Over and over I assured them that they had a straight attack of fever or stomach trouble without complications, but they were convinced I was only putting it mildly to keep from scaring them to death. When, just to please them, I finally wrote a history of the illness they were so proud that they had the story printed in pamphlet form at their own expense."

NEW YORK STILL A FUR STATE.

That the reputation of the state of New York as a fur bearing district has not been entirely lost and that that reputation so far as Wayne county is concerned is still being kept up is shown by the fact that approximately $30,000 worth of furs were shipped to New York by one dealer during the fall of 1910 and so far during 1911.

Since the season opened last fall he has bought furs as follows: Fifty thousand muskrats, 10,000 skunks, 500 raccoons, 600 minks, 300 red foxes, 500 ermine, which make a total of over 60,000 skins. Undoubtedly this does not represent the entire catch, for there are probably other dealers.—Newark (N. Y.) Union-Gazette.

PRIMITIVE TELEGRAPHY.

An amusing story of reckoning by notches comes from Preston, England. The other day a North Country cattle dealer entered a telegraph office and handed a telegram which consisted, besides the address, of eight strokes. The clerk inquired if these were meant for figures. "Call them figures or whatever you like," said the sender, "so that they come out the same at the other end, and I'll tell you why. That telegram is going to my housekeeper. She can't read or write a word, but when the telegram reaches her she'll count the strokes, and understand that I shall be home at eight o'clock tonight."

PLEASANT COMPARISON.

"Bolt" Davis, who is editor of Munsey's Magazine and the author of several plays, is the possessor of a sense of humor and a power of expression that is frequently picturesque. Speaking of a man who had achieved some distinction as a kill-joy said: "That fellow is a great athlete. He can throw a wet blanket 200 yards in any gathering."

FOR THE FLY.

Flies may be effectually disposed of without the use of poison. Take half a teaspoonful of black pepper and a whole teaspoonful of cream, mix well and put on a plate; then place where the flies are most troublesome and they will soon disappear.—Home department, National Magazine.

HIS WIFE WAS INVALUABLE

Tailor's Spouse Entertained Women Customers During Fittings so They Would Stand Naturally.

For a long time people wondered why the tailor's wife came into the shop as soon as a customer came in to try on a skirt and sit around telling funny stories till the fitting was over. One day the tailor explained.

"She does that to make women stand naturally," he said. "Unless something is going on to take their minds off themselves they strike a perfectly ridiculous attitude. Every few minutes I caution them to stand natural, but their self-consciousness won't let them. They throw their waist forward and their hips back, until a skirt fitted the way they are then standing is about two inches too short in front and two inches too long in the back when they fall back into an every-day position. But just get a woman interested in something besides herself and she will forget to pose."

"My wife interests them. She can't sew and she can't fit, and for a long time I couldn't figure out what use I could put her to in the shop, but finally I discovered that she has a mighty talent for story telling, and after I took to utilizing her one accomplishment alternations in skirts fell off 90 per cent."

"QUITE A HISTORIC SPOT"

American Woman Tourist Learns a Bit About the Ruins of the Roman Forum.

An American archaeologist with a great enthusiasm for the period of the Caesars was wandering about the Roman Forum one morning when a woman poked her head over the wall.

"Hey!" she said in the familiar accent of western New York. "What place is this?"

"This is the ruins of the Forum," responded the archaeologist.

"And what might that be?" she asked.

Amused, but glad of a chance to induct a fresh mind into his hobby, the archaeologist explained. He waxed eloquent; he began at its foundation; he pictured the pageant after pageant of history, the successive armies and races that made that spot memorable. Finally he ran down for want of breath.

"My!" she said. "Quite a historic spot, isn't it?"—Success Magazine.

MENNONITES AND WATERMELON

The Mennonites have a decided preference for watermelons over every other "fruit." They call the melons "arboosen," though we would not be willing to certify that this is the correct spelling. The last detachment happened to arrive at Atchison one Saturday—market day—and among the first objects they saw were the big Kansas watermelons. They "went for them then and there," and felt that they had reached the "happy land of Canaan." Unless some other state can raise larger watermelons than Kansas—which some other state can't—the future Mennonite immigration will be directed hitherward.—Noble L. Prentiss, Kansas Miscellaneous.

JOKED WITH JOKER.

A victim of street car pickpockets resolved to get even, the Cleveland Plain Dealer says. He put in his pocketbook nothing but a slip of paper on which was written: "This is where you lose, fellow!" Then he climbed into a pay-as-you-enter car and waited. Twenty minutes passed and nothing happened. Twenty more minutes flitted by. The sleuth left the car then, having assured himself that his purse was safe. He repaired to a safe place and looked things over. There was a slip of paper, just as he had wrapped it up. But when he opened it the thing had a new sentence on it. It said: "Ain't you the kidder?"

Wall & McGowan have placed an elaborate and expensive sign on the northeast corner of their store house, at the corner of Seventh and Main streets. The sign runs ten feet above the sidewalk to the top of the building. It is twenty-six feet long and three feet wide, making a large and conspicuous sign, especially for a city the size of Hopkinsville.

The Greenwood Advertising Co., of Knoxville, Tenn., made the sign and shipped it through the City Light Co. There are 166 four-candle-power lamps in the sign, which consume about one kilowatt of current per hour. The lamps are the new Mazda sign lamps. The total candle-power of the sign is 664.

There is a blue field, handsomely decorated with red and green, in which the words "Wall & McGowan" are brought out by the lights. At the bottom of the sign is the word "Clothing." The sign is placed at such an angle that it can be seen from any point on Main or Seventh streets.

"Tom, Where is The Cooper Addition?"

Why naturally one supposes that when you see an addition advertised it means some tract of land is divided into lots near or just out of the city limits.

You will be surprised to know that THE COOPER ADDITION is just two blocks west from South Main street and contains 19 acres lying between 13th and 16th streets.

Do you remember the Ferrell school that used to stand across 13th street, the Cooper addition begins right there. It is almost right in the heart of Hopkinsville, only four blocks from the business part of the city, three blocks from the present I. C. depot and it is rumored that the new passenger depot will be built just one block west of the property.

It is an ideal location for a home for the business or working man because it is close to his store, bank or shop. It is an ideal location for a home because it is on the right side of the city—as the western breeze gets you first there. But it is pure atmosphere not laden with germs, dust or odors. It is a beautiful plot of ground with good elevation and natural drainage. Concrete walks have been built and water pipes laid throughout the entire property. It is the last possible close-in property available. I would advise you to buy a lot at the Cooper Addition sale on next Monday, June 19th, at nine o'clock, if you do not care to build.

The lots in Cooper Addition will double in value in less than 3 years, so it will be a fine investment. Suppose we walk out and look the lots over; it will only take a few minutes as it is just a short distance from here.

Is "Vodeveal" Necessary?

(By Louis Reeves Harrison, in the Moving Picture World)

Don't you think we have had enough of the cheapest and poorest form of entertainment ever slung over the apron of the stage into the face of a self-respecting and unoffending audience?

There is a picture theater near my house which is so airy and comfortable that I would like to go there every day. The reason I do not is because I cannot stomach more than one unsavory dish of "vodeveal" a week. The mere thought of enduring a second dose of the nauseating acts presented in that house drives me away to some more congenial place of entertainment. I do not know how much the manager of that place pays the Dutch comedian who plays wretchedly on several excruciating instruments, but if this unmusical performer's salary was added to that of the ghostly sourette who recites a threadbare song in a cigarette voice and the total applied to raising the quality of the miniature orchestra, I would go, my friends would go, and we would send others. There is no advertisement superior to a satisfied customer. I do go once in a while, being of a hopeful disposition, but regularly I walk several blocks further down the street, even on cold nights, and deposit my contribution at a less pretentious place. So do others. There is nearly always a waiting line at the modest place. They only give four pictures there, but these pictures are well projected on a superlative screen, and the girl at the piano is a Jim-Dandy.

I did not notice that girl at first, possibly because she was not a rubber-necking, or smiling at the hatchet face in the front row, but I gradually became conscious that the most ordinary pictures shown seemed to have taken on a new guise, all the merit that was in them came out and was fully appreciated because that quiet little girl at the piano knew her business and attended to it instead of neglecting it to give an impression that she was superior to her job. I became interested even in one of those decadent survivals of primitive photoplays in which white men with whiskers on their legs chased red men with feathers on their heads because the music was so spirited that I found myself excusing the dime novel drama. I looked around me and saw a nice class of people enjoying themselves, mostly men with their wives and children and I ask the man next to me if the place was always so well patronized. He told me that it was to be enlarged in a few weeks because it was impossible to accommodate all who came during busy hours of the evening.

"As far as I am concerned," he added, "I come here as much to hear that girl play as to see the pictures." I paid more attention to the girl. She was not enough of a natural musician to improvise, but she had a large assortment of sheet music, on the rack from which she made intelligent selections. She had evidently done some thinking ahead, possibly she had read a summary of the plays in advance, any way she was on time at every change of scene with something suited to the sentiment. There was nothing particularly brilliant about her performance, but it was in good taste and satisfactory to those who came to be entertained.

I went back to the more pretentious theater, and noticing that it was only about half full I asked the proprietor why he handed out such indigestible stuff as "vodeveal."

"I don't like it," he said, "but the people want it and I have to give it to 'em."

That is what he thinks, it is quite possible that a number of people are really drawn into his place by the variety entertainment, but I doubt if they equal the number driven away by it. Those driven away are the most desirable patrons; they are the steadies who have acquired the habit; in this case they have acquired the habit of going elsewhere.

"Vodeveal" has nothing to do with bringing these theaters into existence; to the contrary it puts many of them on the Fritz. Most of these theaters were impossible before the advent of moving pictures and they would be just as impossible now if the pictures were withdrawn, yet every conceivable slight is put upon that essential portion of the entertainment which brought most of these theaters into existence and is keeping them alive today. Of course intelligent managers do not slight any portion of the business, but a good many of them do not realize how annoying it is to a sensible people in the audience when the jackass at the drum keeps up a running fire of conversation with the pianist or the latter lapses in his performance to play with one hand or practice an accompaniment for some forthcoming song. These things may seem trivial to the jackasses in the orchestra, but they distract attention from the pictures in a way that is irritating to a large percentage of the patrons, especially to those in the front row. On the stage behind the screen, those who are about to come on with an unmusical act, tune the instruments while there's a picture play in progress and all along the line there are evidences of hostility shown to the picture production wherever it is given in combination with "vodeveal." Whether this hostility is due to ignorance or prejudice, makes very little difference; it so seriously injures the photoplay presentation that theaters devoted to pictures alone in combination with superior instrumental music as an harmonious accessory are drawing the biggest crowds.

Given a well ventilated theater with comfortable seats and polite attendants the best possible plan to fill it is to present new pictures with fine projection to appropriate music. Thousands are able to go every day to such exhibitions where hundreds would patronize cheap "vodeveal" once a week. The man who first presents a high class picture on up-to-date principles will find money falling into the box office drawer like the food which sustained the children of Israel in the wilderness.

And I am presenting high class pictures on up-to-date principles, which you will admit, and I don't deny that quite a few dimes are falling in my money drawer. And I intend continuing giving you meritorious interludes inments but never cheap "vodeveal."

Yours truly,
GEO. A. BLEICH.

Woodmen of World Held Sway Thursday and Fun Was There.

Campbell's Cave is now scoring every week as a place for picnic parties. Thursday the Woodmen of the World, with their families and some invited friends, hid themselves thence and had a joyous time in the cave and the woods around it. W. E. Campbell, owner of the cave, J. The affair was a basket picnic and there were all kinds of good things to eat. Music by Lebkuecher's orchestra, and some chin music, enlivened the occasion.

Next Tuesday the cave will be open to the 400 pupils of the Baptist Sunday School and there will be a dinner long to be remembered.

NOTICE!

I wish to say to my friends and the public, that I have resigned my position with the Forbes Mfg. Co., horse shoeing shop, and will have interest in the H. W. Dorris horse shoeing, Cooper's old stand, and have my same hand that worked for me at Forbes' shop and has worked for me for the past ten years, and also have Mr. McDonald, who has had charge of H. W. Dorris' shoeing shop since I quit two years ago, and will say that you can't find two better shoers in the city than these two men, and I, myself, can shoe a horse some, and will say your horse will be treated right at our shop, just like it was my own. Every shoe guaranteed to give satisfaction.

Very truly yours,
MACK HARPER.

HE WAS CERTAINLY ELIGIBLE

Candidate for Volunteer Fire Company Lived on Farm but Slept in His Office.

There used to be a company of brave fire laddies in Albany, Ore., known as the Linn County Fire company No. 2. It was a volunteer organization and pretty near all of the best people in the city belonged to it, including United States Senator Chamberlain.

In this town was a young lawyer whose father was very rich and who had been to an eastern law school. Since his graduation he had done nothing except open an office. This young lawyer was proposed for membership in the Linn county Fire company.

"We cannot elect him," one of the members protested. "The constitution of our company says that the members of it must sleep in Albany and live here in the city; and he lives out of town on a farm and not in the city at all. He would be of no value at all in case of a fire at night. He doesn't sleep here at night."

"No," replied Chamberlain, "it is true he doesn't sleep here at night, but he sleeps here in his office all day."

And they elected him on that ground.—Saturday Evening Post.

DIPPING IN FOR SERMONS

Dinks—Did you notice the flour on the crown of Rev. Nailer's hat this morning?

Winks—Yes. He must be getting pretty close to the bottom of the barrel.

AID TO HUSBANDS' MEMORIES.

The United States government is undertaking a cure for men who forget to mail their wives' letters. The post office department, as an experiment, has installed mail boxes in street cars in the city of Washington. If it works well in the capital, this aid to bad memories will be extended to other cities. The idea is that with a mail box staring him in the face while a man is on his way to his office, there is no excuse for his carrying a letter in his pocket more than three or four days. Thus far the post office has provided no relief for the wife whose husband forgets to bring home the butter or order the coal.—Success Magazine.

CONTROL OF CHILDREN.

A mother confessed recently that her infant son of seven was quite unmanageable, without realizing that this admission published her own shame. From birth she had treated him as an irresponsible plaything, and now she was reaping the fruits of her own sowing. Many an unfortunate governess has been called upon to enforce discipline among an unruly flock of youngsters totally unacquainted with the meaning of the word. In despair the parents finally send the youthful rebels off to school, where they learn the lesson of obedience in bitterness and tears.—Exchange.

CAUGHT EIGHT-FOOT HALIBUT.

A gigantic halibut was delivered on the Grimsby market. It measured over eight feet in length and drew the scales at twenty-four stone. When caught on an ordinary line it gave no trouble until drawn to the surface, and then it played with the fishermen for a long time until with several great hooks under its gills and powerful lines attached it was drawn on board by the steam winch. The monster was sold at auction for $25, which is almost a record.—Westminster Gazette.

DEPLORABLE.

"A fire escape is an architectural after thought that often fails to materialize."

"And often it isn't even an after-thought."

Part of Arizona That Has Been Visited by Only Two or Three White Travelers.

Letters received from Zane Gray indicated that the author of "The Heritage of the Desert" had some interesting experiences ahead of him. His last letter was dated Flagstaff, Ariz., and is as follows: "I leave here tomorrow for Navajo mountain. There is only one man who knows the trail and his name is Wetherall. He lives in the Painted Desert about 200 miles out and his place is the last trading post. I have an old timer—in fact, a 'forty-niner,' to take me out to Tuba, Oraibi, Red lake and then on to Wetherall's. From there the country is exceedingly barren and wild. In fact, my guide says it is the wildest country left in the United States. Two years ago a geological survey man got a Navajo to take him to this mountain and this trip resulted in the discovery of the wonderful natural bridge that the Navajos worship. Since then only two or three travelers have undertaken the journey. So I expect a hard but wonderful trip. I hope to get out in a month or six weeks.—Harper's Weekly.

J. B. YEATS' STUDY IN BOYS

In Ireland They Like Them Bright and Send the Dull Ones to England.

To Harper's Weekly J. B. Yeats contributes a delightful article upon the Irish boy, contrasted with the Englishman's son. "The overwhelming majority of Irish families are poor, ambitious and intellectual," writes this author, "and all have the national habit, once indigenous in 'Merry England,' of much conversation. In modern England they like a dull man and so they like a dull boy. We like bright men and bright boys. When there is a dull boy we send him to England and put him into business where he may sink or swim, and be generally swims; but a bright boy is a different story. Quickly he becomes the family confidant, learning all about the family necessities; with so much frank conversation it cannot be otherwise. He knows every detail in the school bills and what it will cost to put him through the university . . . as he grows older he watches, like an expert, the younger brothers coming on and is eager to advise in his young wisdom as to their prospects."

AND PROUD OF HIS FEAT?

Frank Emerson is the owner of a pair of shoes which he has had for 23 years and which are in good order at present and have been worn by him every day. There has not been a year in the twenty-three in which Mr. Emerson has not worn this remarkable pair of shoes.

He first wore the shoes on Sundays only, and even reckoning that he had worn them on Sunday only for the entire 23 years he would have worn them every day for three years and 101 days. The shoes were originally of the side elastic type, but a short time ago Mr. Emerson had them made into laced shoes.—Skowhegan Letter to the Kennebec Journal.

THE GENESIS OF O. K.

As to slang—you know, of course, the meaning of O. K., one of the many expressions of perfection. And you probably have been brought up in the belief that the initials originated with an illiterate man who marked his business accounts O. K. as meaning "Oll Korrect." But a Chicago paper has found another and an American origin. During the Civil war O. Kenkall & Sons started manufacturing a very popular brand of army biscuits that were preferred to bread. As they were stamped with the firm's initials—well you see the rest.

BIG HOUSEKEEPING PLANT.

Miss Emily Wayland Dinwiddie has been appointed as housekeeper of the Trinity tenements in New York. There are 334 tenements, holding 788 families, and the housekeeping is naturally a very extensive affair. She investigated the property some time ago, and the outcome of her work was that she keeps house where she had been studying the conditions.

Her Father's Heroine

By Lawrence Alfred Clay

Major Clavering, retired, and living in a suburban village, had pains and aches and stiff joints, and therefore when there was business to be done in the city he delegated it to his daughter, Faith. Even after she had arrived at the age of twenty and had been making shopping and other trips for two years, the father would call her before him when she was ready to go again and say:

"Now, firstly, look out for your purse. Secondly, if a strange man addresses you appeal to the nearest policeman. Thirdly, beware of the policeman himself. Fourthly, if there is an accident on the train keep cool. Fifthly, if any one attempts to kidnap you, you bite and kick and scratch. Sixthly, don't miss the train coming back and keep us all in a stew."

Miss Faith could repeat the instructions forward and backward. She always listened in humility and always rejoined:

"Why, daddy, what can possibly happen?"

"A million things can happen, and you be on your guard against every single one of them. You are the daughter of Major Clavering. If the occasion ever arises when you can make a heroine of yourself and don't do it I shall feel like disowning you. I guess that's all today, but you look out."

Two long years and at least fifty trips to the city and back, and yet Miss Faith Clavering was no heroine. It was not her fault. She had always been ready.

On this occasion she started off prepared for collisions, pickpockets, mad dogs, Black Handers and all other sorts of folks and things, but at the same time she wasn't worrying. At two o'clock in the afternoon she had finished her errands and was ready to take the subway to the Grand Central station. Of course the train was crowded. There was a jam as she got off and another on the stairway and some one twitched her purse out of her hand.

The supreme moment had come at last. The girl gave a gasp, braced up and turned to the man beside her and seized his arm and firmly said: "You have my purse, sir, and if you don't restore it I will give you in charge!"

"You are mistaken, Miss," was the reply.

"I am not. You just twitched it out of my hand."

"I beg you to believe the contrary. My hands have been in my pockets to protect my own. I think it was a rat of a boy who crowded between us."

"Will you give up the purse?" demanded the girl as her face hardened.

"May I present my card and identify myself?" was asked in reply, and there was a smile on the young man's face instead of a look of worry.

A policeman who scented trouble came strolling that way and Miss Faith nodded to him and said:

"Officer, I give this person in charge! He has got my purse!"

"Sure, Miss?" asked the bluecoat after a glance at the prisoner.

"I am, sir."

"Because, if you are not exactly sure, you know—"

"But I am."

"Then I'll take him to the station, but you must come too and make complaint."

"I assure you that you are making a grave mistake, Miss," said the young man to his accuser, but he smiled as he said so.

"I'm sure I'm not."

The officer and his prisoner rode to the station in one taxi and the complainant in another and the three arrived together.

When they stood at the sergeant's desk it seemed to the girl as if some signal passed—some signal that made the sergeant grin, but she bravely went ahead and made the complaint and was told to appear in court the next forenoon at ten o'clock. She had her return ticket in her glove, where prudent girls always carry them and as she took the train for home she realized that she was a heroine. Her father would praise her to the skies. He would call her the brave daughter of a brave man. He might even buy her a gold watch and have it suitably inscribed.

In the station house behind her there was chuckling and laughing and saying:

"Well, well, but it is funny!" But of course she couldn't know that. Instead of being cracked on the head and jammed into a cell the prisoner was permitted to sit in the captain's room and smoke and finally to wander away.

Miss Faith reached her station and home an hour late. The major had become nervous, as was always the case, and was at the gate to meet her and to ask:

"Haven't I told you what to do in all emergencies?"

"Yes, daddy."

"And in this emergency—?"

"I had him arrested and locked up. He tried hard to bluff me, but I went through with it. He was a pickpocket, you know."

"Great Scots! Mother, hear what Faith is saying! A pickpocket got her purse and she had him arrested!"

"Dear me!"

"Brave girl! Noble girl!" said the father, as he patted the daughter on the shoulder. "So you had him locked up, eh?"

"Yes, and I went to the station and made the complaint against him."

"Hear that, mother? Our little heroine goes to the police station to see that the fellow is properly booked! Oh, I've always said she had the courage of her father. Was the thief a boy or a man?"

Was at the Gate to Meet Her.

"A young man."

"Had a tough look, I suppose?"

"Well, no. He looked to be a thorough gentleman. He stood up so straight that the thought came to me that he was a soldier."

"But he couldn't have been, of course. You got his name, didn't you?"

"Yes. He gave it to the police as Capt. Bryn Merrit."

"What?" yelled the major, as he fairly jumped clear of the floor.

"Why, what ails you, daddy?"

"Capt. Bryn Merrit! You—you charged him with pocket picking! You had him arrested! You had him locked up! You—you—"

"And why not?"

"Because I know him. Because he's now the captain of my old company. Because he's a gentleman. Because he's one of the nicest young chaps in the world. You are no heroine. You are almost an idiot!"

"Daddy!"

"And I had invited him to come down and see us some day next week! No use of your crying. You've got us all in a bad scrape, and if the captain falls in love with you, you've got to marry him to get us out."

The captain is in the Philippines now. When he comes home there may be a wedding. At least the correspondence covers four and five pages at a time on both sides.

NOT A VIRTUE.

"You won't make any mistake in buying this car, Mr. Juggins," said the agent. "It is the best in the market. There isn't any come-back to our output."

"Then I don't want it," retorted Juggins. "There wasn't any come-back to the last car I had, and I had to walk back. Haven't you anything you can show me with a few return attachments?"—Harper's Weekly.

"They offered to take her and her friend at half rates, and I suppose she could not resist a bargain sale."

KITTY MEWS PASSED A

FORGED CHECK

Stranger Giving Name of L. M. Montgomery Charged With Forgery.

Tuesday afternoon, a man giving his name as Stevens called at the office of the Davis Monument Co., and asked for two blank checks, on the Planters Bank, which he was given, he had gotten one that morning. Early yesterday morning, Mr. John Charlton called on Mr. Davis and said that he had cashed a check with the latter's signature, for $3 50. The check was made payable to M. L. Montgomery. Mr. Charlton's description of the forger, and that of Mr. Davis' caller tallied.

Officers Witherspoon and Merritt, accompanied by Latham Davis, started out after the man. Young Davis saw him entering a negro cabin near the railroad bridge north of town. He was found in the attic. When captured, he would not admit that he made out the check, but did admit that he cashed it. He said that he had cashed only one check. A book was found on him, which had the name of a leading citizen of each station between Henderson and Nashville. Mr. Davis' name was opposite Hopkinsville. The prisoner would say no more, and was placed in jail. The check was well written, but the signature was nothing like Mr. Davis'.

Stevens, alias M. L. Montgomery, is about six feet tall, and weighs 155 or 160 pounds. He has gray hair, blue eyes, and a gold crown around one of his front upper teeth. He appears to be about 35 years old, and is slenderly built, having slender features. He wore a dark, common suit. The grand jury has the case.

HELD BULL BY THE HORNS.

A farmer's daughter was faced the other day with the necessity of practically fulfilling the advice of the old adage, "take the bull by the horns." The story of how the young girl, Miss Jacques, rescued her father from a mad bull comes from Beaulieu, Hampshire, England. The animal suddenly became infuriated, and after knocking down the girl's brother, rushed at the father, and tossed him a considerable distance. Miss Jacques, hearing the uproar, came out, seized the bull by the horns, and held the animal until the injured men escaped indoors. She then let go and also ran for the house. She barely succeeded in making her escape, the bull actually charging the door.

DELICATE IRONY.

Col. Sir Charles Hightsdale had his regiment out for a practice march on the road near Dublin, Harper's Weekly says. His command had suffered several overwhelming routs in the Boer war. Meeting a drove of pigs on the way to Dublin market, Sir Charles considerably halted his regiment at the roadside, so as to let the pigs pass. "Oh, come on, colonel; come on!" cried the pig drover, saluting. "Come on, yer honor. Sure, there isn't a boar among them!"
